Here stand my books, line upon line
They reach the roof, and row by row,
They speak of faded tastes of mine,
And things I did, but do not know.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

May I take this opportunity to express how pleased I am to be Principal of this fine school; and to extend my gratitude to the Parents and Friends within the community for their co-operation, assistance and interest in the welfare of our students.

A school with so devoted a staff, and with such overwhelming school spirit, cannot but help create a richer environment for growing and learning. Massey has built a fine tradition - that we do the best in both work and play. Greatness cannot be thrust upon us - we must earn it with much time, effort and devotion toward the cause of success; and this success will come only if every student will give the school the ability and talent with which each is endowed.

To our students who are graduating this year I extend to you every good wish for happiness in your future endeavours. We hope you will always carry in your heart a special place for the memories of your years at Massey.

MANY MOODS OF MASSEY

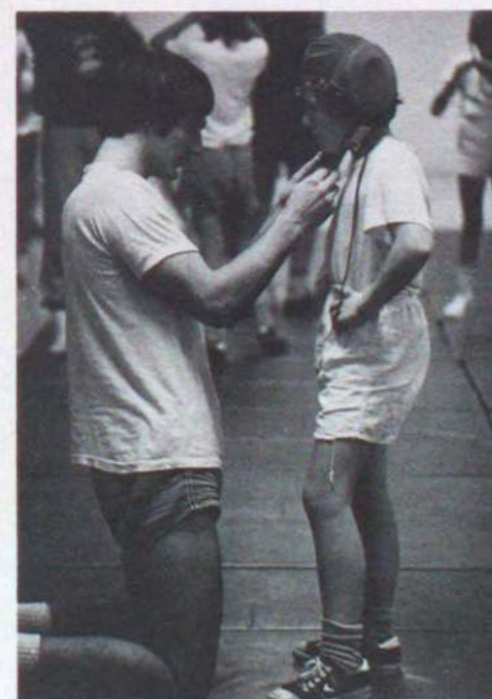

I think I did something wrong!

It's great being a sophisticated Grade 12.

My security blanket is in the wash.

Now, son, it's like this ...

My creation is almost complete

Eye of newt, tongue of frog

It's amazing what we learn in Home Ec. these days!

"Silence"

In the emptiness of solitude,
 One may sit and rediscover a thing so distant from the present and long dead in the future

Silence -
 hear the muscle twitch and the heaviness that fills the air Whispers down with so much pressure, it could break your mind.

Until the infinite point is reached,
 and then - a sound - and monotony is broken:
 Rejoice to hear, once again,
 the object of the flight.

Yet another side to the story:
 More of peace and filled with beauty, is the silence of the soul.
 And still, it rests, with the quiet of the heart.
 No ripple of noise - confusion, or pondering agony.

Gone is the pressure - and with this silence, away from the present noise of destruction rests the weightlessness of the tree.
 But yet again, the peace is broken, and you must brace yourself to hear, once more,
 - the object of the flight.

DENYS

The thought
 A green lathered ocean pounding upon a rocky surf wild and untouchable unleashing all fury upon the grains of sand for endless time.
 Green purple and blue of the heavens
 Match the fury as the sun blazes its path across the sky and empties into nothingness How many whispered thoughts are carried upon your heavens shoulders forgotten How many pledges, hopes and dreams by your wayside
 You carry with you the secrets of multitudes Forever hidden away from the curious, cold, searching of man.

The Endless Battle
 Jr. Honourable Mention
 Ann Huang

Nora Sobolov
 1st junior poetry

Reluctantly, the lone sentinel raised the old dusty rifle with his already aching arms.
 After firing madly at the advancing, meaningless shapes of men, he paused, deep in thought.
 How he longed to return home, weary from the noise and the terror that was endless in the line where he fought.
 In his mind flashed the scenes he recalled so vividly, of groups of battered men marching onward through the desolate, deserted farms.
 The soldier was tired of seeing the dead lie where the ebb and the flow of battles had cruelly discarded them.
 Peace indeed seemed far away on the battlefield with ruined promises and yet long lost hopes.

DENYS

I walked toward the huge building which cast its dark shadow across the parking lot. My heart skipped one beat... two, three. When would it come back!? I walked blindly onward tripping here and there on the loose pavement. The open door came closer and closer. I left the smoke-filled air and entered the stuffy building. Some change! I walked down the long corridors a dozen times before I found my homeroom. Bravely, I entered convincing myself that others felt the same way. The teacher's voice droned on and on, in one ear and out the other. I guess it was because of the heat. It was making me sleepy and daydreamy. Finally we were told to go to our next class. Slowly I picked my way through the mass of people until I found my next room. Each room had different kids and teachers. I've never seen so many of them. When I went home for lunch I felt quite happy that I had gone through my first high school morning so well.

After eating my sandwich, I was already to face the afternoon. The first class brought my spirits up considerably. When we were dismissed, I felt that everything was going to be all right. I glanced at my sheet: 200. It was just down the hall so I walked in and got down. I was surprised to see so many "dumb" grade twelves in my English class. Looking around I saw French here, French there, 200 on the door, 100 on my schedule! Oh brother! Getting stiffly up I walked casually to the door. Pretending I heard a friend call, I stuck my head out the door, waved and left.

I doubt that I fooled them though, because it was such a stupid thing to do. I think I should have walked straight out. Imagine how the people in the hall felt. Suddenly they see this crazy kid wave at them. Anyway at least the rest of the afternoon was better... but what about tomorrow?

The Funny Man

Looking at that saddening time-wrought face staring at me from behind the mirror reawakened those persistently nagging thoughts in my head. That face, whose multiplying wrinkles demanded more and more make-up each day for concealment, almost seemed to be pleading for forgiveness, as if the tortured life hidden behind those weary eyes was being judged, or scrutinized. All the thoughts that were in my head were etched also on that leathery puppet's face before me. How much longer? it seemed to ask. Isn't fifty years of steady work more than enough for any lifetime? I could see in it the countless years of sleeping in tents and trailers, or on speeding trains bound for nowhere. Always on the move, always on the run... What is it you are running from? Your family? Your friends? Or yourself? it questioned. Torment

Paper World

Seeing all the paper people worshipping their paper gods.
Seeing honest paper people, and seeing all the paper frauds.

Seeing paper men in paper suits do their paper work each paper day, and paper little girls and boys playing in a paper way.

One paper fool get depressed,
and heaved a paper sigh, then turned towards his paper clock to watch the paper time go by.

This one young paper person, different from all others, takes a paper pen with paper ink and finds real happiness in paper.

The Approaching Future
Karl Klinck Senior 2nd

Zero Population Growth has been reached Lets everybody stand up and cheer
Now future generations need worry no longer
For their precious little hunk of space.

Immobile stand a row of creatures waiting to be stuck with a key Life will be wound into the bodies
As another one loses his energy

To be programmed
But who wants
Like an obedient computer in a life
To live and thrive in a life
Where you aren't free.

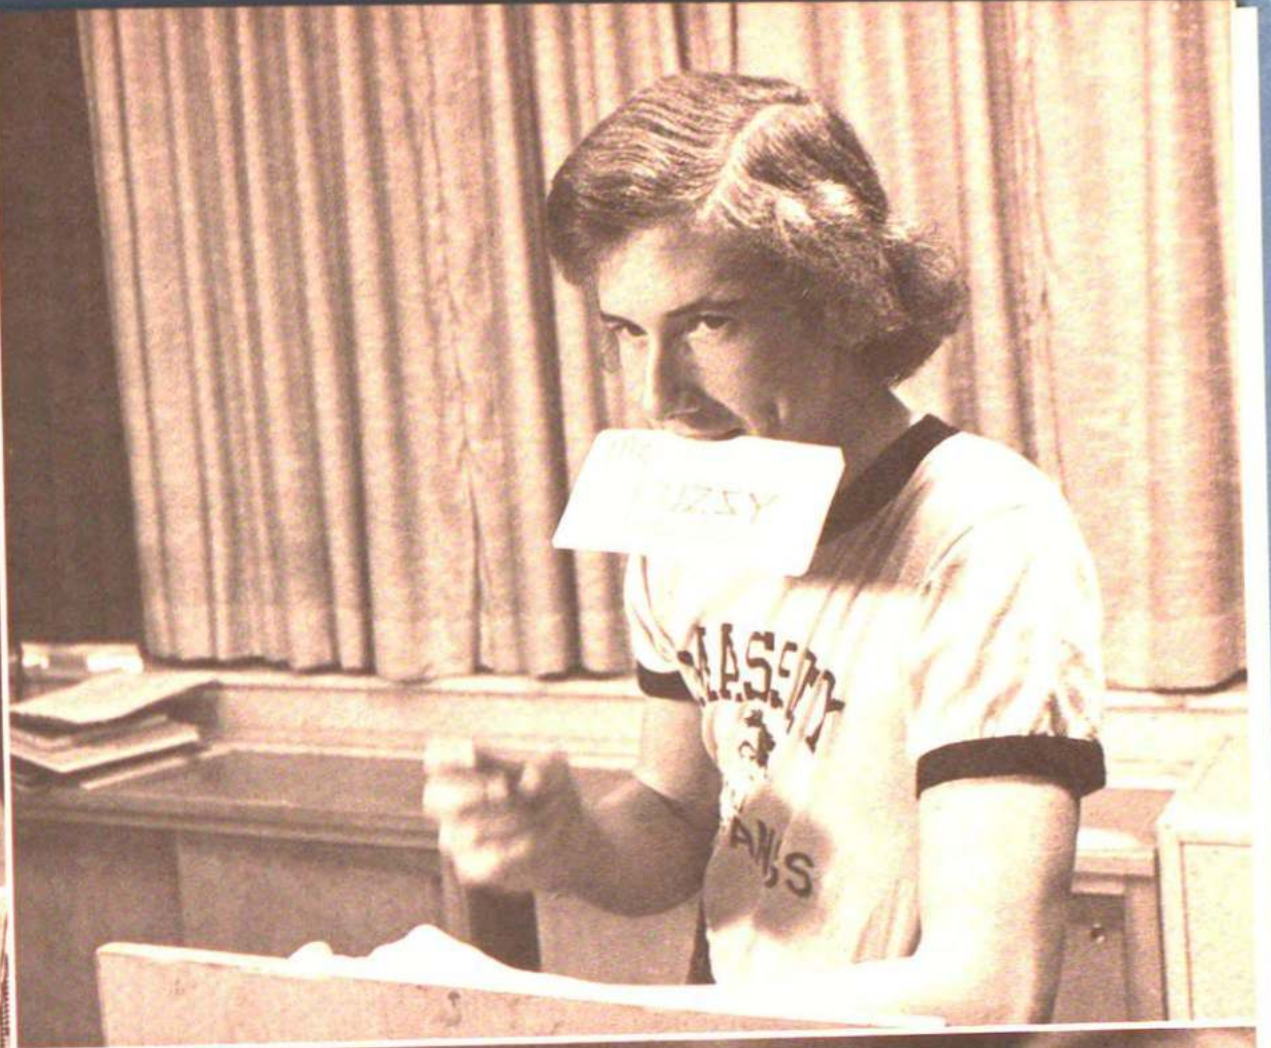

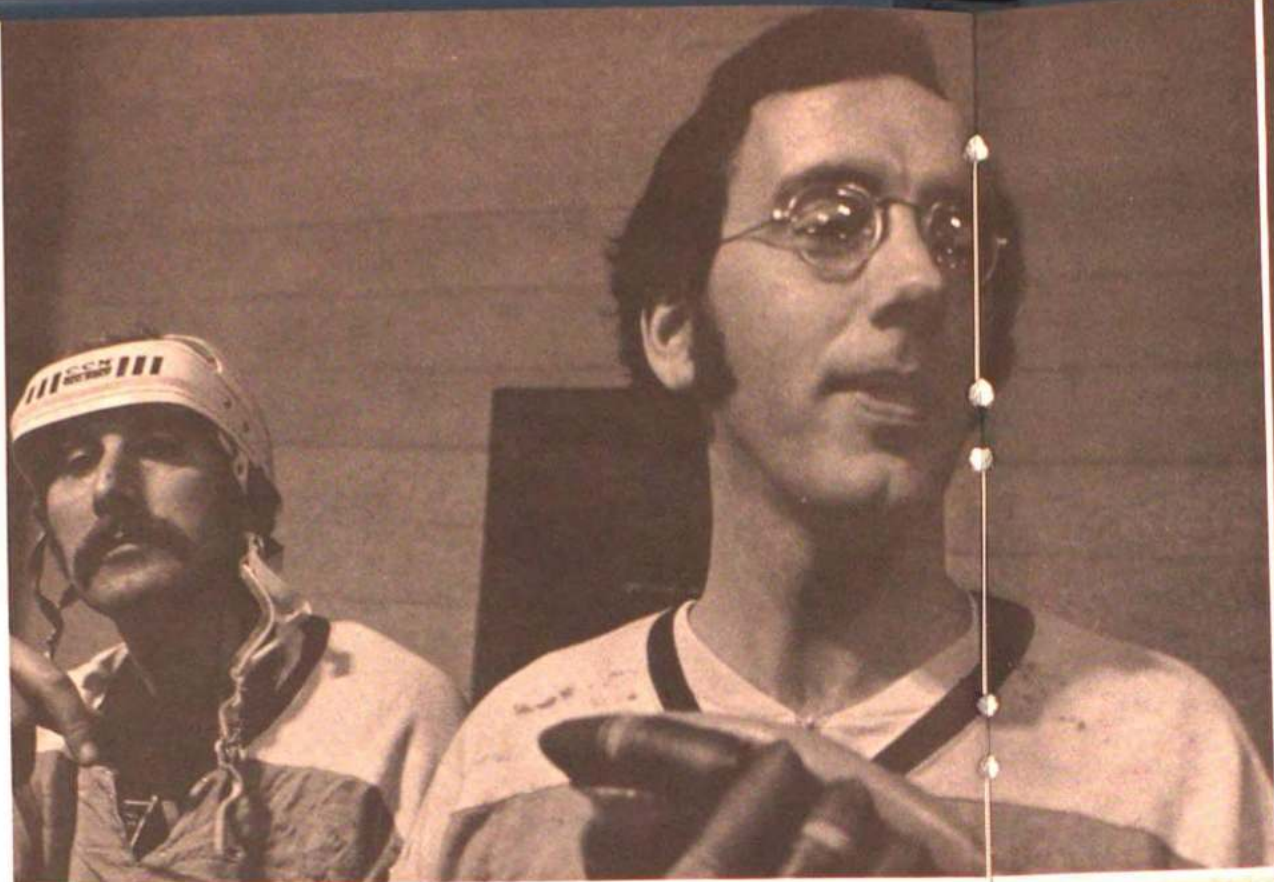

Everybody's the same, male and female both Everybody's conditioned into a job.
You are conditionally, mentally, and sexually Satisfied never allowed to escape.

A special person walks into your life
But hush, don't let anyone know
For if they find out
They'll turn off your key.

I'm not saying the approaching future
Doesn't hold any promises
But I just hope I'm gone before the day
When I have to turn someone's love away.

JR. FOOTBALL CHAMPS

This year's Jr. Football team, improving with each game, climaxed its season with a convincing 25-6 win over the Brennan Cardinals for the city championship. This marked the third city championship in the last six years. The championship game was highlighted by the opening game kickoff return by Quarterback Craig Mallender for a 100-yard touchdown run. Much of the hard running for the team was done by John Osadchuk, Steve Gotts, Peter Steves and Chris Owens, while the pass catching department was left to Mark Mallot and John Hart. The line play was anchored by captain Scott Essery along with two-way players Paul Benza, Bob Lynn, Ed Robitaille and Ted Evans. Quarterback Craig Mallender was voted the teams most valuable player. Sincere thanks to go our coaches, Mr. V. Radovich, Mr. T. Jakobzen, and Mr. B. Lazarus.

WRESTLING TEAM

The wrestling team has a great deal to be proud of this year. In addition to the sense of accomplishment after having endured a great deal of hard work, the team could also look back on: (1) having won at least a medal in every tournament they were entered in; (2) succeeding in obtaining their goal of third place in the W.S.S.A. tournament. These were the goals for this year and each man who stuck it out felt a sense of pride at having helped meet these standards. Mr. Laurendeau would like to thank each member personally for making the team what it was and hopefully what it will be. Everyone connected with the team should be proud.

EDITORIAL

Another school year has come to a close and thus another yearbook completed. In the years ahead we will look back and recall the memories captured here, memories of the year's successes.

The events of the past year have given us the opportunity to experience many moods. There is especially a feeling of accomplishment that we have towards our sports, activities, clubs and those who have brought honours here to Massey. This has been a year of new beginnings. Along with the arrival of a new administration, school spirit has returned to Massey. We hope that this feeling will remain in the years to come as it has been recorded in our "Pegasus" 73-74.
